

C. Critical evaluation

In this process, if consider the key interactions and better magical moments in detail, the relationship between data information and the world will become clearer. In particular, the most regrettable thing about style is that there seems to be more good ways to deliver a lot of information efficiently, though it is cleaner and more concise. Since dessert information has been briefly described only in terms of type, adding more details may improve the quality of the data. For example, if a cake was eaten with coffee, it should include details about which cake it was (choco, whipped cream, Earl Grey, etc.) and where it was purchased. There seems to be nothing more to add or subtract regarding coffee data, but there is a slight ambiguity in the interaction between the information. Rather than showing a clean relationship, there is a feeling that the information is too sporadic. Regarding design, it is regrettable that should make the colours more distinct and choose a cleaner shape.